He was William Meacham Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Meacham.

The boy was killed when the car began rolling down to an alley from the rear of the Meacham home. The car sideswiped the garage, banging the left front door shut on the boy.

Lincoln Schools Claim Asks $50,000 Of State

... For Deficit On Service Children

By Betty Person

Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln will file a claim Monday on behalf of the Lincoln School District for approximately $50,000 which represents the amount due the district from the state for the education of children whose fathers are in the armed services here.

The claim, which would be attached to the claims bill to be submitted to the Legislature, would make up the deficit from the 1958-59 school year.

Nebraska law requires that children of any enlisted man or officer on active duty in the state of Nebraska who resides on federal property must be admitted to the public schools of the district in, near, or adjacent to the place where the father is stationed.

State law also provides that each district having such children shall be paid a sum of $3 a week for each such child in elementary schools, and $6 a week for each such child in high school and that the funds shall come from the state general fund.

Appropriation Short

The 1957 Legislature did not appropriate enough funds for the 1957-59 biennium to pay the amounts required for the 7 Nebraska communities affected by the law.

The 1959 Legislature's Budget Committee has not provided funds to make up the deficit, nor has it appropriated funds

Leave Blazing Vessel

30 On Cable Ship Rescued

London (Monday) (P)—A British cable ship caught fire in the North Atlantic during the night, and a freighter radioed that she was picking up crewmen after they had abandoned ship.

The ship in distress was the 4,354-ton Ocean Layer, which normally carries a crew of about 30.

The Ocean Layer reported that fire had broken out in her engine room and spread rapidly to other parts of the ship. Shortly after an S.O.S., the vessel reported that the crew was abandoning ship.

Flavia Has Crew

Later the freighter Flavia, believed to be either Italian or German, reported she had 4 lifeboats from the Ocean Layer alongside.

It was not known immediately whether any of the Ocean Layer crew had been lost or injured in the fire.

The U.S. Navy transport Upshur and the 11,182-ton British tanker Athelmonarch also were speeding to the scene, about 540 miles off the English coast.

The Upshur left New York recently for Bremerhaven with about 400 civilians and 400 troops on board. She changed course to go to the aid of the Ocean Layer.

The Ocean Layer is owned by Submarine Cables Ltd. of London.

Heat Slated To Continue

Old Sol continued to pour his fiery energy on Nebraska with unrelenting fury as the state goes into another day of 90-degree weather Monday.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were predicted throughout the state, but the over-all picture was the same—sweltering heat.

Possible relief from the heat was forecast for Tuesday with partly cloudy skies and scattered showers and thunderstorms.

The Weather Bureau predicted somewhat cooler temperatures in the northwest Monday, but highs throughout the state were expected to be in the 90s.

A blazing 102 at Valentine was the high temperature reported in the state Sunday. Chadron reported 100 while North Platte and Imperial both reported 97 readings. Burwell and Scottsbluff each had 95.

Plane Hits In Iowa —4 Killed

... Left Omaha

Dallas Center, Ia. (P)—Four persons, one a 7-year-old boy, were killed Sunday afternoon when the light plane in which they were riding plunged into a field two miles west of here.

Dallas County Sheriff Evan Burger said the crash occurred about 50 feet off Highway 64.

The dead were identified as Floyd Husband, 60, of Dallas Center, pilot and owner of the plane; Mrs. Ruth Robel, about 50, of West Des Moines; Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson, about 50, of Waukegan, Ia.; and Mrs. Robinson's young son, Thomas.

Burger said the plane plunged straight down into a field. Nothing remained but a mass of twisted wreckage.

From Omaha

The sheriff said the single-engine, 4-seater was returning from Omaha and heading for an airport a half mile from the scene of the accident.

The plane crashed about 100 yards from a poultry farm, operated by Joe Slaughter.

Mrs. Slaughter said "We heard a plane overhead and then the engine stopped. It didn't sound right, but we didn't go out to look."

"The first we knew of the crash," she said, "was a few minutes later when 3 girls drove into the yard and told us about it."

Earl W. Lewis of Creston, who was flying near the airport when the accident occurred, said the fatal plane was more than 500 feet above ground when he saw it make 3 spins and plunge to earth.

Speaks Through Window

First Face-Face Words With Newsmen

Galveston, Tex. (P)—Louisiana Gov. Earl Long shouted from his hospital window to 4 Louisiana newsmen Sunday night: "I'm no more crazy than you are."

"They led me in here in handcuffs... they wanted to kill the loan shark bill... they wanted to pass the sales tax... they wanted to kill my election bill."

Long made the comments after James McLean, Louisiana capitol correspondent for the Associated Press, and Mrs. Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge, La., Morning Advocate, walked to within 30 feet of the governor's second story room in the John Sealy Clinic and yelled at him.

Mrs. Dixon called, "Hi, governor." McLean hollered, "Hey, Earl!"

Long, who had his back to the window, apparently talking to an attendant, heard them and asked who it was. They identified themselves and he answered with, "I'm no more crazy than you are."

It was the first time any newsmen had talked face-to-face with the governor since he was brought here May 30.

Family To Fight

Meanwhile, the governor's family began drafting plans for a possible challenge to his court bid here Monday for freedom from a Texas mental clinic.

Mrs. Long said he participated in the pre-trial conference but doesn't plan to participate in the hearing. She said she hopes she won't be called as a witness.

Long's request for the hearing claimed he was drugged, tied and kidnapped from his mansion in Baton Rouge and force against his will into a psychiatric clinic here.

In a taped interview broadcast Sunday in Shreveport, La., Gov. Long charged he was "captured" and forced into a Texas mental clinic by "a couple of bone crushers."

"One weighed 290, one 180," Long said.

'Brutalized'

"There never has been a man brutalized and handled—governor or no governor—like I've been handled," he said.

Long said he was committed by people who claimed they wanted to help him.

But "they really want to run for governor themselves," Long said. He named Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), his nephew; Mrs. Blanch Long, his wife; and Ray Hufft, Louisiana adjutant general.

The 63-year-old governor also:

1. Predicted he would win his court hearing in Galveston.

2. Served notice he would call a special session of the legislature to enact his pet bills that died while he was committed.

3. Called his wife "the most jealous woman in Louisiana." Long said "30 people" took him out of the manions "by force."

"They loaded me into an ambulance, told me I was going to Ochsen's Clinic (New Orleans), that my wife would be waiting, and Russell (Long), and other friends," Long said.

The governor said he asked why they were in the air so long. He was told bad weather forced them to fly to Galveston.

"They took my britches off. I was only left with my undershirt, a little mesh white shirt. No shoes, no pants, no money, not even a fingernail file."

Berlin Compromise A Possibility

DEALING IS STILL TOUCHY

Geneva (AP)—Outlines of a possible Berlin compromise emerged Sunday night through the smoke of East-West controversy as the Big 4 entered their make-or-break sixth week of Geneva talks.

But some very delicate diplomatic dealing remained between the promise and fulfillment of any American-British-French-Soviet accord on the disputed city's future.

There was no assurance a new Berlin pact would be concluded at this conference of foreign ministers.

Race With Time

The powers who meet in secret session Monday at the residence of French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville knew additionally they are racing against time.

American Secretary of State Christian A. Herter told Andrei A. Gromyko of Russia plainly last Thursday the next 3 business sessions of the conference should show if a realistic arrangement on Berlin is possible. One of those sessions was used, up Friday.

Nevertheless, some of the essential ingredients of a compromise appear to have been accepted by East and West during the dramatic exchanges of the last few days.

To get agreement on the time, place and work-program of a summit conference this summer, Gromyko Monday or Tuesday may shelve the one-year time limit condition which highlighted his stopgap Berlin plan.

Pledges

Such a step could clear the way for an agreed East-West communique in which the two sides would pledge to stand still in Berlin pending a long-term arrangement; to refrain from increasing tension; to improve conditions in the city.

Thus the urgent problems facing the Big 4 Monday will be to insure this parley does not collapse and to set up signposts toward a Berlin pact that could be concluded at the summit.

Reading between the lines of conference speeches and judging by views expressed by diplomats of both sides it also has become clear that a final compromise on Berlin will be shaped by several factors.

Russia Realizes

Russia has recognized at least partially and grudgingly that:

1. The western allies intend to retain their legal rights in West Berlin — rights which will allow them to intervene on behalf of 2,200,000 West Berliners in case of Red harassment.
2. The western allies intend to stay on there more than one year, as Russia has suggested, but no longer than it takes to reunify Germany.

3. The western allies demand certain guarantees for continuance of their access rights along the air, land and water routes and want these rights defined.

West Realizes

For their part the western allies have noted, grudgingly too, that:

1. The Russians refuse to sign any document "perpetuating" indefinitely the occupation status now enjoyed by the allies in West Berlin.
2. The Russians demand changes inside West Berlin—for instance in cutting back military garrisons, controls on propaganda and subversive activities directed against the communist block, the introduction of East German control along the air, land and water routes.

State VFW Convention Underway

Hastings, Neb. (AP)—A memorial service Sunday evening was a highlight of the day's activities at the 39th annual state convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars here.

The service was followed by a reception for Gold Star Mothers.

The VFW and its Auxiliary joined earlier Sunday for a joint session at which state and auxiliary officers were introduced.

Among the special guests is National Junior Vice Commander-In-Chief T. C. "Ted" Connell, 33, of Killeen, Tex., one of the youngest men ever to hold the post.

2nd Annual Water Show At Base Set

The Lincoln Air Force Base is planning its second annual Aqua-Air Show for July 3, 4 and 5 on Bowling Lake at LAFB.

Last year's show, held to dedicate the lake, attracted more than 100,000 spectators.

A water ski and thrill show, with 18 acts, is planned, and members of the Lincoln Sport Parachuting Club will jump, trying to land on the lake's 3-acre island.

The air show will also include flying demonstrations by F-102 supersonic jet fighters and F-86 all-weather interceptors, as well as a helicopter which will make a simulated air rescue.

Afternoon air and water performances will begin at 2 p.m. Evening water shows will be at 8 p.m.

"East Avenue, Holdrege, Paved in 1925"

The tremendous yardage of concrete paving listed at the right is an investment that will benefit Nebraska taxpayers for years to come.

You really save money when your streets are paved with low annual-cost concrete. Concrete's low cost per year is the result of its moderate first cost combined with lower maintenance cost and longer life. Concrete pavement is built to last 50 years or more.

Concrete streets are safer, too—wet or dry, night or day. They are easier to keep clean and cost less to illuminate. They improve the appearance of any neighborhood and enhance its property values.

When your street needs improving, ask that it be paved with safe, durable concrete.

Budget Debate This Week May Indicate Session Length

By Betty Person
Nebraska lawmakers will convene at 2 p.m. Monday for the start of their 24th week of the 1959 session, a week which may well hold the key to the length of this 69th session.

The key lies in the debate on the budget bills, LBs 72 and 74, which contain the Budget Committee's tentative recommendations for state expenditures for the coming two years.

The committee's recommendations are not yet complete due to the final disposition of bills pending which could yet affect the overall budget for the 1959-61 biennium.

To Move 'No Debate'
Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff served notice last Friday, however, that he will move Tuesday to accept the committee's recommendations as they are submitted rather than opening up the budget bills for amendments.

If the bills are accepted as is, he said, it should mean the Legislature should be able to adjourn by June 30. If the committee's recommendations are subjected to considerable debate and amendments, it could prolong the session for one or two weeks into July.

Several senators have indicated, however, that they are not going to be willing to pass the budget bills without intensive debate, and attempts to amend from the floor are expected.

Carpenter contends the committee has been hard at work for more than 5 months interviewing the different state agencies and is in a better position to know what funds are needed than those members who have not received such detailed information.

One Hearing
One committee hearing is scheduled this week, LB733, proposing a constitutional amendment to provide for the election of more than one county judge for a county and the forming of county judicial districts consisting of more than one county, will be heard Wednesday by the Government Committee.

Gov. Ralph Brooks also may introduce a bill Monday which would establish a central drivers license bureau, and call for an increase in drivers license fees from the present $2 to $3.

Purpose of the bill would be to tighten up the issuance of licenses to prevent the chance of counterfeit licenses.

The Legislature last Friday cleaned up all bills pending on general file (first floor consideration), except the budget bills, and requests for Legislative Council studies have yet to receive initial debate on the floor.

Bad Hopper Troubles Hit Box Butte Farmers
Alliance, Neb. (AP) — Box Butte County farmers have been issued a stern warning to take preventive steps now for what could be a record year for grasshoppers.

County Extension Agent Clifford Quick said the grasshopper situation in the county is getting out of hand and noted that the hoppers are very thick already.

Quick asked all farmers in the county to check their fields and if there is a concentration of hoppers, they should start a spraying program at once.

and the student who may become a speech therapist, according to University officials.

The book does not intend to make therapists out of teachers, the authors explain, but rather to enable them to play a greater part in a child's speech development. But to do this, they add, the teacher must know when to use the development methods and how. Most books on speech development and correction, they explain, are too technical for the average elementary teacher.

In an attempt to make the book "practical and usable," the authors have divided it into three parts. The first is designed to acquaint the reader with the normal speech development of the child and with common speech deviations.

Two-Fold Need Filled By NU Profs' Speech Text

The second section discusses ways of finding individual speech needs and presents materials for testing speech and keeping records of the child's progress.

Finally, about one third of the book is devoted to a collection of remedial material —another outgrowth of the authors' laboratory work. Not generally found in other speech correction texts, this material may be used in a speech improvement and correction through individual and group therapy.

A Bad Bet
Omaha (UPI) — A man with a shotgun out to collect a bet was arrested here.

Police said the man was carrying a loaded 20-gauge shotgun and heading toward a tavern.

The man told police he had won a $5 bet on a pool game and the loser refused to pay, giving him instead a black eye when he tried to collect.

"That's when I went home for my shotgun," he said.

He was booked on a drunk charge and held for questioning.

Harlan Reservoir Dragging Misses Body Of Kansan

Alma, Neb. (AP) — The Harlan County reservoir was dragged without success Sunday for the body of Bernal Campbell, 21, of Smith Center, Kan., who drowned Saturday night.

Sheriff T. H. Baker said several boats were put out on the lake and divers also were called in, but attempts to locate the body were in vain.

Two companions told Baker that Campbell was swimming after a raft which broke away from the bank when he went down about 150 feet from the shore.

No Long Swedish Speeches For Nikita

Stockholm, (AP) — The Swedish government has blocked Nikita Khrushchev from delivering a platform speech when visiting this country in August, a Stockholm morning paper reported.

Dagens Nyheter said a request from the Soviet Premier to be given a chance to "talk to a larger audience than an ordinary news conference" had been rejected by the government committee in charge of arrangements for the visit.

Futility Of Duplication

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Perhaps something constructive has come from the dispute over the relative merits of Army and Air Force missile programs. It has at least led the President and Pentagon officials to arrive at a change in emphasis on the nation's air defense program.

Rather than missile defense against manned bombers, the emphasis will be switched to missiles for defense against missiles. To the average person, at least, this will be a logical change.

Two Defense Programs

But the missile dispute still seems to be basically without a solution. The development of competitive missiles by the Army and Air Force will continue. The change in emphasis will be realized merely by cutting down the funds for both efforts and putting more money into the Army's anti-missile program. This still leaves billions going into both bomber defense programs.

The point at issue was two-fold in this controversy. One issue was whether the bomber missile was becoming too obsolete and this is partially answered by the administration's alteration of funds. With Russia concentrating on offensive missile weapons, there is little logic to an extensive missile program by the U.S. to defend against manned bombers.

The other part of the question was whether defense funds were being wasted by the Army-Air Force competition. This question remains unanswered. If all funds for the Nike Hercules and the Air Force's Bomarc were pooled in the interest of a single weapon against bomber attack, economies would be expected.

If this is not the case, the services and the President should explain it. Their position as of the present is like stating that two and two don't make four but refusing to say what they do make or why. The divided missile approach calls for duplication in all areas of research, manufacture and administration. It has two branches of the service devoting their efforts toward the same goal rather than both pursuing separate but important objectives.

This controversy over the merits of the various phases of the nation's missile program has been of long standing. It was pushed into open debate with the Russian launching of its first Sputnik. Since that time there has been a great deal of discussion but no settlement of the problem.

Lincoln has a particular interest in the question as this area is scheduled as the site for a Nike Hercules base. But there would be no inclination on the part of Lincoln or Nebraska citizens to probing a needless expense merely to obtain a missile site. This could result in a dangerous lag in the nation's defense picture as well as a costly tax situation.

There is sound reasoning to the argument that the nation must have a mixed defense, including protection against manned bomber attacks. But this does not explain the duplicate effort in this particular area. In view of the latest decision on the distribution of missile funds, the administration does not intend to solve or explain this problem.

In that case, it would seem to be the responsibility of Congress to take this matter into its own hands. It will do no good for the House to cut out the Bomarc and the Senate to slash the Nike funds.

This will merely result in a compromise which will continue the division as it now stands. The total defense program is too costly to permit any waste of money for any reason, particularly for the prestige of any single branch of the service. And while the U.S. wastes time and money in the pursuit of two duplicate goals, the Russians are moving ahead with determination.

They are also employing a very single-minded approach, building their missile offensive as fast as time and money permit. Certainly, the public is entitled to more of an answer than it has received in this area. A change in voting habits is likely to manifest itself if the current Washington indifference continues to prevail.

We Fiddle; Red Wheels Turn

Not Worth The Effort

So long as the Nebraska Legislature sees fit to eliminate from a vote of the people so much constructive legislation, it should at least show the courtesy of eliminating the needless. There is difficulty in seeing the need for cluttering up the ballot with a proposal for four-year staggered terms for members of the Legislature.

This measure has been advanced by the Legislature while such things as reapportionment and a constitutional convention are killed. The change in terms just isn't worth the trouble of a separate constitutional amendment. It would do nothing to contribute to a better membership in the Legislature and very little to any improvement in the quality of work done.

As an added feature to something like reapportionment, it would be advisable but as a separate issue it lacks sufficient importance. Of much more merit, for instance, would be a four-year term for the governor but it is doubtful if this would get any place. At any given period, there are plenty of legislators who can be re-elected. There would be enough of them to give the group the continuity it needs. Those who seek re-election but are beaten are probably just as well off with a four-year term.

The disturbing thing about the issue is that it is too much of a demonstration, through contrasts, of the lack of depth in the current Legislature. The body has not shown the statesmanship and public-spiritedness that is expected of it. It has dealt far too often in trivialities and permitted important work to be buried in politics, personalities and selfish interests.

In many quarters, this shortcoming is attributed to the non-partisan character of the Legislature. While the actions of the Legislature continue to win friends for this point of view, it still lacks support in fact. The Legislature will always stand or fall on the caliber of its members as individuals, not according to political division. A party label can't turn a ham into a star.

Beyond The Point Of Logic

A good number of valid reasons can be marshalled against diplomatic recognition of Red China, the best one being that recognition carries no promise either of friendship or reform. Unilateral attempts at cooperation are meaningless.

But the U.S. State Department often carries the Red China quarantine too far. Its intransigent opposition, carried on so long, against permitting objective U.S. newsmen to visit and report on China, was a good example.

One of lesser consequence, but equally indefensible occurred recently when the State Department made an issue over a decision of the International Olympic Games Committee.

In setting up the structure for selection of athletes for the games the committee ruled that Chinese Communist National Committee should have charge of naming the athletes from the Red Chinese mainland. It left to the Nationalist Chinese the job of picking the candidates from Formosa.

World's Eye On TVA

The Tennessee Valley Authority continues to be one of this country's most controversial institutions—and surprisingly, too, since it achieved its function both as a social and an economic asset.

But the United States is about the only place where the merit of TVA is debated. Elsewhere, it is considered one of the greatest and most desirable types of institution this country has devised. It has namesakes in every part of the world while improvement plans in undeveloped countries uniformly place TVA-type developments near the top of the list.

According to Justice William O. Douglas of the U.S. Supreme Court, world student and recent visitor to Asia, there are TVAs on the Orontes river in Lebanon, in the Gal Oya valley of Ceylon, in the Yallahs valley in Caribbean Jamaica, on the Rio Lempa in Salvador, in the Highlands of Scotland, on the Rhone river in France, on the Andean Santa river in Peru and on the Snowy and Murray rivers in Australia. All of them copied the TVA principle of social and economic advancement in underdeveloped regions through production and sale of electric power from falling water.

In 1958 2,700 visitors from foreign lands studied the Tennessee Valley project so they could return to their respective countries and help with similar developments.

Justice Douglas observed that, "It may come as a surprise to many Americans that their Tennessee Valley Authority program is not only well known to countless Asiatics, even in the remotest reaches of that continent, but has come close to mean to them a symbol of a hopeful new way of life for themselves and their children."

Thinking Bear

In Quebec a motorist noticed a bear sitting in the middle of the road. He stopped, opened the car door, the bear jumped in and road home with the driver. Now he won't leave.

That seems to be about as far as one can take hitch hiking. Human beings started the practice and heretofore have been content to settle for the ride, or steal the car. But none of them have thought of going to live with the driver. People apparently are not as resourceful as they used to be, but animals are.

Nixon Displeased With Traveling Pal

Washington—A grandstand play to put 169 teamsters on the Senate witness stand today (June 15) has been nipped by Sen. John McClellan, Arkansas Democrat, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, Arizona Republican.

The move was planned by eager-beaver Bob Kennedy, younger brother of Sen. Jack Kennedy of Massachusetts, as a final flare before he resigns to manage his brother's campaign for president. Bob Kennedy has been counsel for the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee.

Kennedy had issued subpoenas for the 169 teamsters, most of whom had already testified. They included some of the top officials in the union, and young Kennedy planned to give them a public lecture which would bring big headlines.

However, when McClellan and Goldwater got wind of the plan they quickly applied the veto. As of this writing all but 40 of the subpoenas have been withdrawn, and the remainder are in the process of being withdrawn on the ground that Senator McClellan is ill—which has been the case.

Vice President Nixon was really fit to be tied when the White House announced that the President's brother Milton would accompany Nixon to Moscow.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Free China Booster Soon To Be Retired

WASHINGTON — Shortly there will retire from the State Department one who went the whole way in loyalty and devotion to John Foster Dulles. Walter S. Robertson was the late secretary's strong right arm in America's Asian policy.

An assistant secretary for Far Eastern affairs for nearly seven years, he was tireless in the single-minded objective of maintaining the quarantine of Communist China as the base of American policy.

It seems obvious to most observers that Robertson more than any individual has been the standard-bearer of America's Asia policy. In one dramatic intervention in particular he helped to carry the day for the Formosa resolution which, as adopted by the Senate, gave the United States a far-reaching and in a sense irrevocable commitment in the Formosa Straits.

Before Congress met to adopt the resolution on January 29, 1955, Robertson flew down to Vienna, Georgia, for a long talk with Sen. Walter George. George led the fight for the Formosa resolution. He came down like an avenging Jehovah on anyone who dared speak against it. In the end only two votes, both Democratic, were cast against the resolution.

Related positions and territories was understood to mean the islands of Quemoy and Matsu just off the mainland of China. Chiang Kai-shek took the resolution as justification for stationing a large proportion of his effective troops on those exposed islands. In the face of all argument he said that the Senate of the United States had agreed at the request of the President to defend him there.

Currently, senators have been informed, a new and more determined effort is being made to get Chiang to move his troops back to Formosa. After the Quemoy-Matsu crisis precipitated by Red China last fall both President Eisenhower and Dulles said that Chiang had too big a share of his forces on the little islands exposed to artillery fire from the mainland.

Chiang refused to budge then. He is saying no this time to the argument that in an interval of relative quiet it would be good to move back from a vulnerable position. After all, he has what he considers an iron-clad guarantee.

Under the Eisenhower administration America's China policy will not change despite signs of restiveness in the Senate. That assurance has gone out to every diplomatic post. When he steps out June 30 Robertson turns his office over to his deputy, J. Graham Parson, a career officer.

Even those differing most sharply from the extremes of the Robertson policy have respected his extraordinary human qualities of perseverance and resolve. If his faith in a free China and the downfall of the Reds had seemed fanatical, it is a fanaticism that has not abandoned reason.

Wonders Of The Universe

One of the greatest gambles in the world is taking place in the backbone of our space travel program—the American missile industry.

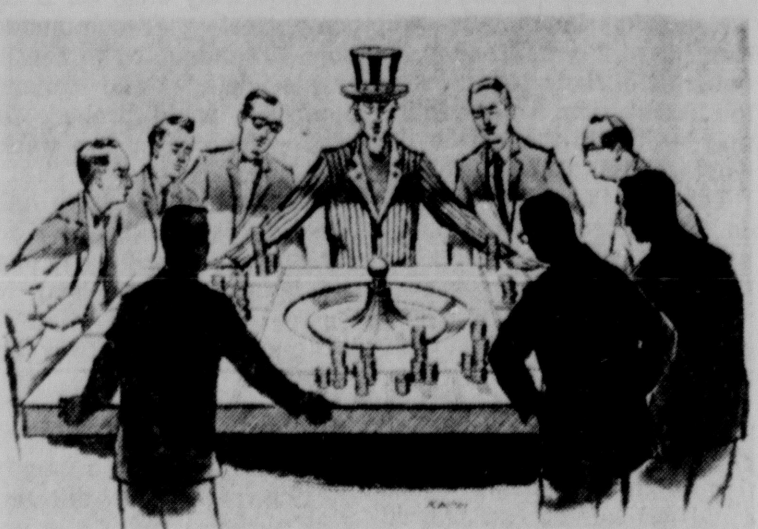

Our missile manufacturers will conceive, design and build the vehicles which will go into space. These new vehicles constitute the greatest contribution the industry can make to our space travel program, and this is the precise area where the missile industry is most vulnerable.

So much time is being spent in drawing up proposals that the consequences of failure to land a contract can spell economic disaster to a company.

Hundreds of engineers are bent over drawing boards or clustered around scientists and designers putting together proposals to submit to government agencies. These men are shaping the future of man in space. And in doing so, they are committing a substantial portion of a company's resources to these proposals.

If their proposal is accepted, the preliminary work is rewarded by a fat contract. However, if the award is lost, the company realizes nothing on its investment of time, manpower and resources. Just how much is lost when a bidder loses out on a contract?

American missile executives indicate that approximately 10 per cent of the cost of the contract is expended in the formulation of a proposal and the preparation of reports. Thus, with some contracts running into hundreds of millions of dollars, this represents a significant amount of money. While this percentage probably drops with the size of the contract, it is still indicative of the amount of money needed to progress in this field.

Missile manufacturers today are advertising for scientists and engineers. This is a completely misleading picture. The advertising leads to the belief there is a shortage of engineers and scientists. The truth is that the supply of talent is adequate. The only rub is that the talent is employed in contract proposals instead of the work for which the men were hired. Thus, almost 10 per cent of our scientists and engineers are employed in exploratory work which contributes little to the space travel picture.

After speaking to Russian scientists here and abroad, I am convinced that this condition does not prevail in Russia.

In Russia, where industry is not competitive, scientists gather in groups and discuss what they would like to do. They too will make up a proposal and submit it. But the proposal is unquestionably accepted, for the scientists are not asking for approval but simply for money to implement the plan. The necessary funds are made available.

At first blush this seems to be an ideal way of doing business. There is no time lost in proposals that are not accepted. However, Russia pays an extreme penalty for this. Free enterprise is sacrificed for expediency, and no one on this side of the Iron Curtain would willingly make the swap.

While we work under a handicap and are gambling with large sums of money, there is no desire to do away with our system of competitive bidding. The solution to the entire problem is not to eliminate the system, but to modify it so the gambles are less wild and the odds not so prohibitive.

Perhaps the solution will lie in the formation of large industrial complexes whose combined resources can handle any problem of the space age. The wedding of companies for propulsion, guidance, re-entry and bio-astronautics would reduce competition to a minimum and with it create a substantial saving in manpower, brains and facilities.

Integration

Lincoln, Neb.

The present crisis in America that has resulted from the integration program of the public schools is just another step forward of democracy at its best. The whole world is watching and expecting its success. The same struggle is rampant in the giant continent of Africa as well as many other world areas. The vast void in culture, economic opportunity, and standards of living between the privileged white race and its colored brethren must be filled by new visions and great labor. It can only come gradually as all great social changes to higher levels have come about in history.

The void has been maintained by the past effort of the white race and the laxity of effort perhaps of the colored races. But great strides have been made by the latter through the years and the present day sees the evolution coming to a startling fruition. Much is yet to be done. We can well sympathize with the white parent's concern in placing his children in some areas of our nation. But on the other hand, how else can the problem be solved? I feel sure the many fine people in our southern states, in fact the vast majority, will eventually be equal to the occasion and solve the problem. It will be only the minority of its people who will delay the matter.

The closing of schools and such efforts to avoid the dictates of the Supreme Court in this matter have already brought about a great change in the attitude and thinking of southern leaders behind the scenes. These leaders now concede that an integrated school is preferred to a closed one. School attendance in America for every boy and girl has been an ingrained habit and foundation thought throughout our history. Its ceasing in several experiments of recent date has opened the eyes of folks who had not realized its serious consequences in the lives of their children. The immigration of the colored races to all parts of the nation has made the problem a national one. America will not be as truly democratic as the Constitution eloquently describes it for all the world to read until this goal has been attained.

BOB CONSIDINE

The Electra Goes Through Its Paces

NEW YORK — The jet age of aviation has come upon us so swiftly it is startling. While waiting to take off for Chicago from LaGuardia Airport, four of the five waiting planes were either Lockheed Electras or Vickers Viscounts. The newest scent in the transportation age is vintage kerosene.

The Electra took us to Chicago for lunch in less than two hours, and back to New York in time for dinner.

Matter of fact, airlines with prop-jet equipment are now serving drinks and snacks rather than wrestling with full trays of food for the simple reason that the girls just don't have enough time to serve a full meal on a run such as New York to Chicago.

It was my first ride in the Electra. It's an uncommonly comfortable plane... wide seats, wide aisles, and much less noise than I had expected. It has an exhilaratingly fast climb, and while it is about 200 miles an hour slower than the pure jets of the Boeing 707 and DC-8 classes, it still goes past the dependable old Conquies, and DC-6's and 7's in such a way as to make them appear to be flying backwards.

The Electra is the darndest propeller plane ever built. The 4 Allison engines of the plane are set at a precise speed before a take-off and never vary a revolution per minute for the remainder of the flight. The pilot jockeys into position, takes off, climbs gradually or steeply, levels off, flies slow or fast, lets down, lands and brings the plane almost to a stop without ever stepping on the gas or taking his foot off the pedal, so to speak.

He achieves this versatility by changing the pitch of his broad-beamed propellers, changing the angles this way and that to take more or less of a cut at the air—and finally reverses them when the plane lands. Then the same props which had pulled the plane along at 400 miles an hour brake it to a stop.

Test pilots have landed an Electra (empty) and stopped it in 800 feet, using only the reversed props. No wheel brakes. They have also sent the plane into a climb with three of the propellers feathered and those engines turned off.

The annual aquacade is one of the social events of our suburb. It was performed the other afternoon and we claim it a success.

As usual, we contributed one swimming daughter (actually we ALL contribute swimming children. But I always feel a glow of achievement. As though I had given a stained-glass window to the church).

We contributed this swimmer. We also contributed our presence, wearing a sporty sports shirt — but not too sporty. "Please, please, don't wear that red and green one, Daddy! I'll just die if you do!" she said.

Not too sporty. But jaunty, you know what I mean? Just a shade of that old debonaire attitude.

There were several hundred adults sitting on the lawn. And after awhile the loudspeaker gave a couple of gulps. And a lady came out and thanked us all.

Then she thanked those who made it possible. By contributing lighting, costumes, practice pools, costumes and daughters to fill them.

Our daughter was in the number "Me and My Shadow." The "Me's" were dressed in white bathing suits. And the "Shadows" wore black bathing suits.

This is a tremendous break. Bathing suits cost about $18, even on sale. And if you are lucky, your daughter gets in a number where she can use the bathing suit all season.

One year, our daughter was in a striped-suit circus number. The suit was a complete loss. We couldn't even sell it.

We took our 4-year-old son to the Aquacade. His favorite number was "Fun With Neptune."

This number had hundreds of little girls in it. It had 28 "Sea Waves" little girls. It had 15 "Sea Nymph" little girls. It had a lot of "Shy Sea Horses." And a covey of "Playful Star Fish." And a lot of "Gay Lobsters."

Our boy squirmed between people's legs down to the front row. He sat and smiled at all this young, deep-dish apple pie. He likes little girls and it was a good day for such things.

When the little girls went off stage (and the uninteresting old ladies of 15 came on), he came back and braced me for a coke.

They sold cokes under the shade trees up in back. One nice thing about out Aquacade, you can seldom find a seat. So you wander around, peering over people's shoulders. Which is handy if you have a sporty shirt and want everybody to get a good look at it.

"Don't throw the paper cup on the ground, son. Put it in the trash basket back there."

I am raising this boy to be neat. He put his paper cup in the basket. Then he went around picking up other paper cups and putting them in the basket.

People said: "What a nice little boy. And so neat, too."

Well, by and by he ran out of used paper cups. And he began getting other cups. People would put down their cokes to clap. And he would grab them and empty them and throw the cups in the basket.

The people would look down and say: "What happened to my coke? I put it down here just a second ago."

Then some people caught him snatching cokes and cups. They were pretty mad.

So we moved over to the other side of the pool. Where we hoped people would be kinder and more understanding.

It was an excellent day.

How Keotane Turned Vacation Miles Into Vacation Smiles

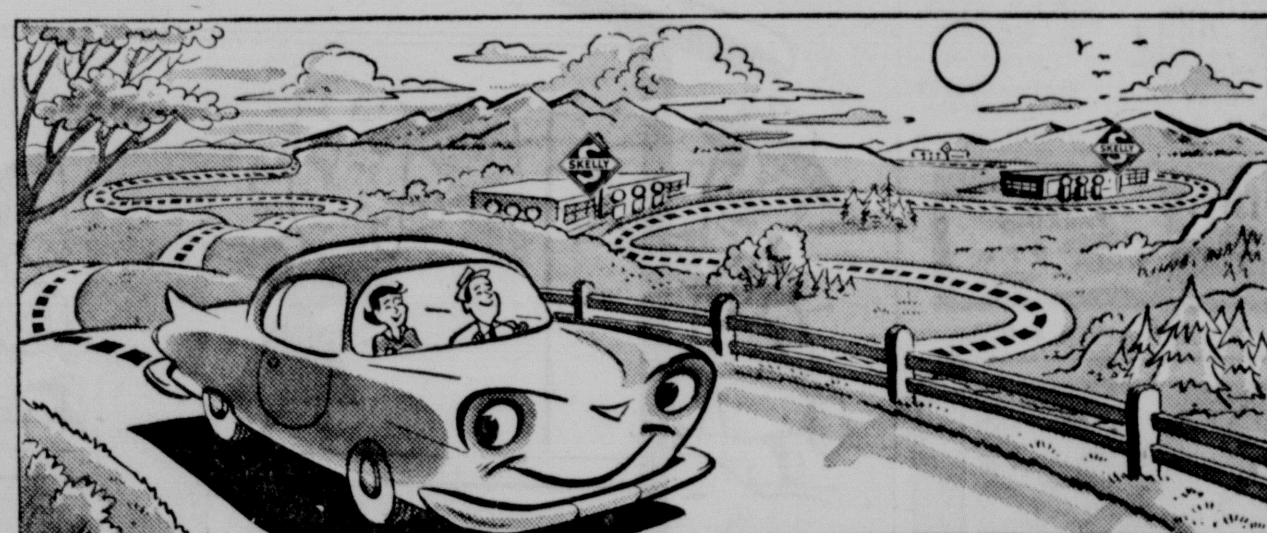

Just By Driving!

Once upon a time, two people and a car started off on a happy vacation. But before they had traveled 100 miles, all three of them were miserable! The car had a terrible time climbing hills. The people ...

... argued about the car: "I've told you for months," grumbled the wife, "we need a new car!" The husband growled, "This car is hardly even broken in—it's good for another 40,000 miles!" And things like that. But luckily ...

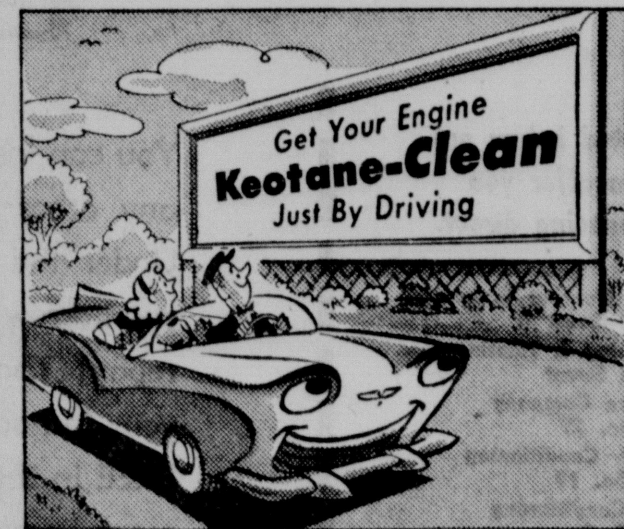

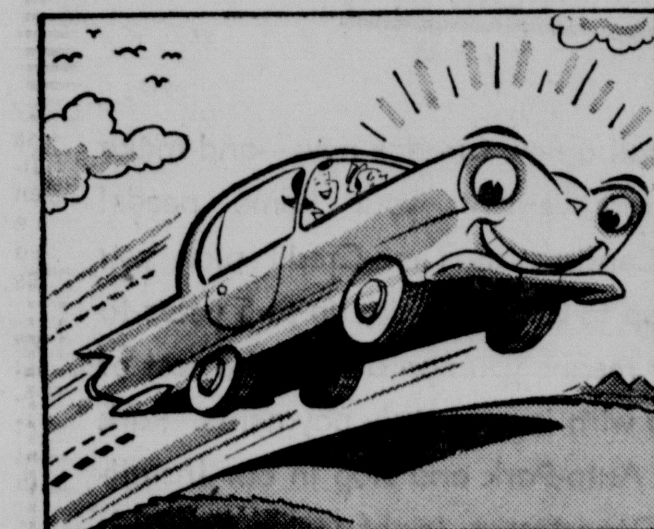

... they stopped at a Skelly station. Well, sir, the Skellyman explained how Skelly Keotane Gasoline could "unglue" the carbon and lead deposits inside their car's engine to help restore power they had lost! And ...

... he added, "Keotane cleans your engine extra quick when you're out on the highway! It takes as much as 3,000 miles of city driving to get your engine Keotane-clean. But when you're out on the open road ...

... you can expect to get results from Skelly Keotane Gasoline in 300 to 500 miles of steady highway driving!" So they tried it. Whenever they needed gasoline, they filled their car with Keotane. And do you know what happened then?

... as they rolled across the prairies and through the valleys, that little car began to feel a lot more lively! It seemed to have more pep and power — and it definitely gave them more miles per gallon! And when they came to ...

... some steep, hilly areas, that car scooted up the hills like a startled cat climbing a tall tree. They had a wonderful vacation after all! Today, they're still using Skelly Keotane Gasoline to keep their engine clean ...

... just by driving! Say, how about you? Whether you are vacation bound, or just cruising around town, remember: It's easy to get your engine clean again with Skelly Keotane Gasoline — and keep it clean — JUST BY DRIVING!

*According to independent research tests, Skelly Keotane Gasoline gives an average of 12.7% more mileage, 14.6% more horsepower output, plus the effect of 3.1 extra octane points. Why not get all of these swell things for your car—just by driving your engine clean with Skelly Keotane Gasoline!

The more you drive, the more you clean with Skelly Keotane Gasoline

Nebraska Range Condition Goes Up

... PROSPECTS GOOD FOR SUMMER GRAZING

The June condition of Nebraska ranges is above a month ago and above the 10-year average, but remains slightly below last year, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said.

The reported range condition is 86.5 points above May, 3 points above the 10-year average but 2 points below the condition reported a year ago.

Range and pasture grasses were slowed by earlier cold weather and lack of sunshine but have made good growth the last half of May.

Some ranchers still are feeding hay along with the green feed. Prospects for summer grazing are good in all areas although the north central range area will require more rain to build subsoil moisture reserves, the divisions said.

The reported cattle condition is 87, up one point over May and up 3 points above a year ago.

'Drastic Steps' Planned To Curb NP Vandalism

North Platte, Neb. (AP)—Drastic steps to curb increasing vandalism at Cody Park and other city-owned recreation areas are being planned by North Platte officials.

A number of ordinances aimed at curbing the vandalism are scheduled for introduction at Tuesday's meeting of the city council.

One would prohibit slingshots, BB guns and other weapons in city-owned areas. Another would provide for reward posters in parking areas offering $25 for information leading to conviction of vandals.

Another ordinance would make the minimum fine for destroying city park property $50 and the maximum $100. Currently under state laws, the fine may range from $1 to $100.

It also has been suggested that speed limit signs be posted in the parks and police crackdown on movement of traffic through city-owned areas.

the 10-year average, but one point under a year ago.

Winter conditions were favorable for cattle and an abundance of feed has been fed, producing good flesh on cattle and strong healthy calves.

Calf death losses have been below that of last year, the division said.

The division also reported some of the early planted corn is up to a fair to good stand and farmers have been cultivating or using rotary hoes to break the crust.

Soil moisture supplies are generally adequate for current needs and there is a good supply of subsoil moisture in most areas except the northern part of the counties bordering South Dakota.

The division said May milk production totaled 224 million pounds, up sharply from the 183 million pounds reported a month earlier. Nebraska egg production during the month was up slightly from a year earlier.

Grandmother Calls 3 Men Heroes After Lake Rescue

... Slipped From Retaining Wall

North Platte, Neb. (AP)—Three North Platte area men are being hailed as heroes by a North Platte woman and her 12-year-old grandson.

Herb Smith, Gail Williams and Don Hinrich pulled the pair out of the water after they had slipped off the retaining wall along the north side of Lake Mahoney.

Mrs. Thayer Miller took her two grandsons, Duane Walker, 11, and Randy, 12, to the lake. With no success at fishing, the boys wanted to go to another part of the lake to catch "a big one."

Hampering Waves

After baiting his hook, Randy wanted to wash his hands and climbed down the slippery concrete face of the wall to the water's edge. He slipped into the water. He tried to swim, but the waves hampered him.

Mrs. Miller went to the water's edge, held onto an iron post imbedded in the concrete, and tried to reach him. But she, too, lost her footing and slipped into the water.

Mrs. Miller kept Randy above water and the boy "must have done a good job of yelling for help." The men heard the calls and rescued the boy first and then his grandmother who "had swallowed a lot of water."

Youths Are Held For Beating Of Bellevue Hermit

Bellevue, Neb. (UPI)—Two 17-year-old Boys Town youths were in the custody of Sarpy County authorities Sunday in connection with the Saturday bludgeoning of a 69-year-old recluse.

Jim Baldwin, "the hermit of Bellevue," was struck on the temple from behind with a lead-weighted club while outside his river-bottom hut north of Bellevue.

The blow was so hard that his right eyeball was popped from its socket. The World War I veteran then crawled nearly two miles seeking aid.

The two youths told authorities they were on a week-end camping trip with their Boy Scout troop at Camp Wakonda. They then went to the hermit's hut to rob him.

The two units, each capable of supplying 300-kilowatt hours of power, will be in service at Harvard for 2 or 3 days while Consumers construct about 2½ miles of 34,500-volt line into Harvard.

The two mobile power units, housed in huge semi-trailers, will supply power to Harvard while crews work on the line.

The two units will be used throughout the state for line moving jobs in connection with highway projects and for other construction jobs, such as the Harvard line.

Betrothal Announced Around The Town

MISS RUTH WIEBE

Of particular interest this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wiebe of the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to Lt. Glenn C. Selch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hildreth Selch of Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Miss Wiebe is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. She now is a stewardess with the United Air Lines.

Lt. Selch, a graduate of the University of Colorado and a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, now is in Korea where he is serving with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. I. Polsky are spending a month vacationing in Baltimore, Md., where they are the guests of Mrs. Polsky's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Oberfeld. Joining his parents later this month in time to accompany them home the first of July will be Max Polsky.

—In spite of the fact that we have given mid-June brides considerable attention this morning we certainly can not neglect our brides-elect—at least two very popular ones, Miss Lucy Webster, whose marriage to Wayne Robertson is planned for August—and Miss Jean Swanson, whose marriage to Clifford Boline, Jr., will be solemnized on June 27.

On Saturday, June 13, Miss Webster, her mother, Mrs. W. Wallace Webster, and her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick W. Webster, went to Norfolk where Mr. Robertson's mother, Mrs. Roy Robertson, entertained at a coffee in courtesy to her son's fiancée.

Also on last week's calendar was the coffee and potpourri shower for which Mrs. Ed Heinrichs, Mrs. Ervin Peterson and Mrs. James Pittenger were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Heinrichs on Wednesday morning when they complimented Miss Webster.

Another courtesy for Miss Webster was the brunch and miscellaneous shower for which Miss Jeanne Garlinghouse, Mrs. Larry Haight, Miss Martha Crocker and Miss Marnie Gardner were hostesses at the Lincoln Country Club.

—Miss Swanson has added a Tuesday party to her already long list of courtesies. On Tuesday evening Mrs. George Turner and her daughter, Mrs. Cecil Walker, will be hostesses at a dessert supper at the home of Mrs. Turner. The soon-to-be bride will be presented with a kitchen shower.

—Apropos of courtesies—we have the farewell variety on our list this morning—We hear that Dr. and Mrs. Dale Anderson will be leaving soon for Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., where Dr. Anderson will be stationed with the army—And we also learned that last Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. Anderson were honored when the members of a supper club entertained. There was a canape party first at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barnett, and later the group, which also included Mr. and Mrs. Dale Olson and Mr. and Mrs. Don Wilson, dined at the Steak House.

—Leaving on Saturday evening for San Francisco—and a career—was Miss Anne Pickett, daughter of Mrs. L. H. Pickett. Miss Pickett was graduated this month from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Dear Abby . . .

Money Isn't Everything

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When Fred and I got married two years ago I agreed to continue my job. We bought a lot of things on time and figured we could marry if we both worked.

Now I find that I'd rather be home. It's too hard on me to stand on my feet all day and then come home to do the marketing, fix supper, do the laundry and clean the apartment. I have become short-tempered and, frankly, I am even too tired to give him the love he needs.

I'm afraid to tell him I want to quit my job because he might think I tricked him into marrying me. How should I handle this?

DEAR TIRED: Tell your husband how you feel. He will probably love you all the more for wanting to be a good wife above all else. You may have to sacrifice a few material things temporarily, but the investment in building a good marriage is more important than money.

DEAR ABBY: I am an average middle-aged wife. It seems to me that most husbands are constantly looking around. Why does the grass always look greener on the other side of the fence?

ALICE
DEAR ALICE: Maybe someone takes better care of the grass over there.

DEAR ABBY: After 27 years of married life my husband died. Four years later I married a man I knew had been divorced once. After being married to this man for two years I met a lady from his home town. She said my husband had been married more than once before. When I asked my husband about it he called this woman a blankety-blank liar. Then another person told me the same story. This time when I asked my husband, he admitted it was true but he refused to tell me who he was married to, for how long, why the divorce, or if there were any children. One divorce was bad enough. Had I known there were two I'd never have married him. After two years can I get an annulment?

DECEIVED
DEAR DECEIVED: You certainly can. Line up a lawyer, lady. You've been had.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl almost 14 years of age. I know most of the Facts of Life, but would like my mother to fill me in on the details. I have read some books about it and the rest I got from my girlfriends. Do you think I am too young to know the rest if there is any? Should I ask my mother to tell me now? She would be the best source as she has had three children.

GROWING UP
DEAR GROWING: Don't hesitate to ask your mother any question that comes to your mind. When a young lady wants to know, it is time to tell her.

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed envelope.

NEBRASKANS ARE SAYING:

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Ammerman, Scotia, Nebraska:

"Electric heat is the homemaker's dream. No dirt or no noise. We are warmer with the thermostat at 70° than we were with other types of heat at 78° or 80°."

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Beebe, Scottsbluff, Nebraska

We recommend electric heat to anyone. It saved us money on installation costs compared to other type systems. We are completely satisfied with our electric heat.

Mr. and Mrs. Durad Moore, Columbus, Nebraska

The first thing we noticed was the even temperature between the floor and ceiling, and the absence of cold drafts. Electric heat is safe for the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Thompson, Lincoln, Nebraska

Every room in the house is warm for the first time. It is very clean. The operating cost is comparable to other types of fuel. We recommend it.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Major, Grand Island, Nebraska

More comfortable than any other heat. It did away with the noise and drafts we had from our forced air system. We now have positive control of the temperature in our home.

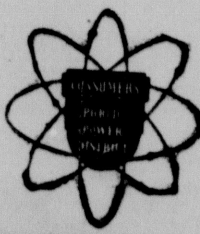

ANOTHER GOOD REASON TO HEAT ELECTRICALLY

The electricity you use for heating is measured by the same meter that measures the electricity you use for lighting and appliances. Thus, you receive the benefit of an accumulated lower rate on all the power you use.

Duane Deal served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were Gregg Wright, Jerry Schrepf, Peter Nelson, William Minchow of Palmyra, and Ronald Keefe of Wahoo.

Chantilly lace over satin was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. Iridescent paillettes contoured the shoulderwide portrait neckline of the long-sleeved Empire bodice.

Mr. Deal and his bride will reside at 6525 Colfax.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, and Gamma Alpha Chi. She now is a member of the reportorial staff of the Lincoln Star.

Mr. Deal was graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University where he is a member of Theta Chi fraternity, and W Club.

LEE-RATHJEN
In the candlelighted chancel of Redeemer Lutheran Church on Sunday evening, June 14, the marriage of Miss Sondra Jean Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Lee of Topeka, Kan., to Robert Allen Rathjen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rathjen of Sweetwater was solemnized. The Rev. Melvin J. Tassler read the lines of the 7 o'clock service, assisted by the Rev. G. O. Kebschull of Chester.

Miss Nancy Lee of Topeka was her sister's maid of honor and was frocked in white silk organza sashed in blue taffeta. The bridesmaid, Miss Carolyn Rathjen, and the junior bridesmaids, Miss Jeanene Rathjen and Miss Doris Rathjen, sisters of the bridegroom, were costumed identically.

Serving his brother as best man was Larry Rathjen, Sweetwater, and seating the guests were the bridegroom's brothers, Ronald Rathjen, Grand Island and Russell Rathjen, Sweetwater; Jack Norris, Columbus; Robert Lee and William Lee, Topeka, brothers of the bride.

White mousseline de soie over taffeta fashioned the bride's gown. White satin embroidered with pearls in a floral pattern formed the portrait decolletage and brief sleeves of the Empire bodice.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rathjen, who will make their home at 4218 Orchard, are June graduates of the University of Nebraska. The bride is a member of Alpha Xi Delta, of which she is past president, and Mr. Rathjen is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Robert A. Dunn of Lincoln, and the bridesmaids, Miss Jodene Dowling of Palmyra; Mrs. Warren Bell of Lawrence, Kan.; Miss Judy Wilcox and Miss JoAnn White wore frocks designed with sleeveless bodices of lace over blue satin, and wide skirts of dotted tulle.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
